GERMANY ASKS FOR ARMISTICE

WOULD DISCUSS PEACE ON THE TERMS LAID DOWN IN THE SPEECHES OF WILSON.

(By the Associated Press)
London, Oct. 7.—The German imperial chancellor has asked Switzerland to request President Wilson to communicate with other belligerents in an effort to establish peace with Wilson's addresses of Aug. 1 and Sept. 27 as basis for negotiations.

Berlin, Sept. 7.—Emperor William in a proclamation to the German army and navy dated Oct. 6, says the Macedonian front has crumbled, our front has not been broken and will not be. I have decided in accord with my allies to again offer peace but it will be only an honorable peace for which we extend our hand.

Text of German Note to Wilson.
Amsterdam, Oct. 6.—The text of the note forwarded by the imperial German chancellor, Prince Maximilian, to President Wilson, through the Swiss government follows:

"The German government requests the president of the United States to take in hand the restoration of peace, acquaint all the belligerent states of this request and invite them to send plenipotentiaries for the purpose of opening negotiations.

"It accepts the program set forth by the President of the United States in his message to congress on January 8 and in his later pronouncements, especially his speech of September 27, as a basis for peace negotiations.

"With a view to avoiding further bloodshed the German government requests the immediate conclusion of an armistice on land and water and in the air."

It is announced that Turkey will take a similar step.

PEACE MOVE WON'T HALT LOAN DRIVE

Washington, Oct. 7.—One thought concerning the German peace offer that found expression in many quarters tonight was that the Germans in launching their effort just at this time, probably hoped to affect the fourth Liberty Loan by creating the idea that the end of the war is at hand.

It is believed their effort will have the opposite effect. Officials were confident the American people will even more generously oversubscribe the loan now as one means of convincing the kaiser they are determined there shall be no peace except a victorious one.

GERMANS RETIRING FROM POSITIONS

ALLIES GAIN GROUND AT SEVERAL POINTS WILL LIKELY EVACUATE LILLE

(Associated Press War Summary)

Outfought by the Franco-Americans the Germans are retreating between General Bertsholt's army on the west and General Gouraud's forces on the east and are retiring northwest toward Retourne river. Americans fighting between the Meuse and Argonne forest are slowly gathering their forces for an assault on that powerful position. There is reason to believe that Lille will be evacuated by the enemy in a few days and the retreat will be extended far down the front to the St. Quentin sector where both French and British are reported clear through the Hindenburg line. "Unconditional surrender," is the answer of the American press to the appeal for peace by Germany and Austria.

German Note Received.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The Swiss legation today received the German peace note to the United States and will transmit it to the State Department at once.

British Progress Between Lens and Cambrai.

London, Oct. 7.—Further progress by the British last night made on the front between Lens and Cambrai, Field Marshal Haig announces. Posts have been established on the crossings of the Scheldt Canal north of Aubencheul-au-bac and east of Oppy. The British pushed slightly further toward Lille on the west and southwest capturing a German post east of Berleau.

Americans Advancing.

Washington, Oct. 7.—Slight advances yesterday by Americans on Meuse and Bois-des-agons in heavy infantry were reported today by General Pershing. Increased artillery activities on both sides was also noted in the statement.

French Gain Ground.

Paris, Oct. 7.—French troops crossed the Suppe river eastward of Crainville and reached Bazancourt and Boul-Sur-Suppe outskirts after severe fighting, says the official announcement. At Clement-a-arnes heavy losses were inflicted on the Germans who retired in disorder. Sunday's fighting completed the deliverance of Rheims. North of St. Quentin fighting continued all day and several fortified woods captured. The enemy resisted furiously, but were unable to check the advance. Several hundred prisoners were taken.

ADA PEOPLE OBSERVED PLEDGE

TOWNSPEOPLE HEDED LAST WEEK'S PLEDGE TO TAKE TWO HOUR'S LAY-OFF.

The entire town as individuals last week signed the Pershing pledge to take 9 to 11 A. M. today as a period of devotion to the bond campaign and the government in general.

They kept the faith. No customers, with only a very few exceptions, wanted to buy; no merchant wanted to sell. It was our country's hour of prayer—it was God's hour.

In the stores there reigned a quietude and peaceful calm that did not augur well for the kaiser. Men and women, young and old, were waiting to sign for the bonds.

Today has been a success in Ada. As this is written, the figures for Ada's total are not available. But the quota will be raised. It will be raised more easily than its predecessor in spite of poor crop conditions. The people have taken the bits in their teeth—and all is well.

We have kept the faith.

MORE WORKERS IN WAR PLANT WANTED

A representative of one of the war industries will be in Ada Tuesday and Wednesday and explain the work in the operating department of the plant and expects volunteers. Barbers, clerks, insurance agents, as well as others who are now engaged in what is classed as non-essential work, can qualify and make good wages as well as help win the war.

All interested please call for O. N. Waker at the Council of Defense office.

KAIER'S PEACE NOTE RECEIVED

NOTE HANDED TO WILSON PERSONALLY. AMERICAN ATTITUDE NOT ANNOUNCED.

(By the Associated Press)

Washington, Oct. 7.—Germany's peace note was delivered personally to President Wilson today by Frederick O. Ederlin attaché of the Swiss legation. Minister Ekengren of Sweden presented the Austrian note to Secretary Lansing at the state department at 10:30 o'clock this morning. The Austrian communication was substantially the same as Germany's and both ask President Wilson to arrange an armistice for peace negotiations on conditions previously laid down by the president.

Official announcement of the government's attitude is still being withheld but there was no abatement of indications that if Germany seeks round table discussions and diplomatic quibbling the offer will fall flat. If she actually accepts President Wilson's terms the way to peace is open with German withdrawal from all invaded territory as the first requirement.

The best way of proving to the Kaiser that American means to have a real peace when a treaty is signed is to go well over the top in the Liberty Loan campaign this week. He wants only a German made peace now and must be made to accept an American peace. The Liberty Bonds furnish the power to bring this about.

"AN HONORABLE PEACE."
"I will accept only an honorable peace," the German Emperor is reported to have said in his proclamation to the army and navy Saturday. What the Kaiser means by an honorable peace, we do not know. Brutus, we are told, was an honorable man, but in spite of this he slew his best friend and the foremost man of the world. Probably an honorable peace, in the Kaiser's estimation, would give him the right to murder innocent men and children and violate innocent women, just as he and his followers have been doing in the past.

The civilized person considers a man honorable, only if he respects his oath, respects the sanctity of the home, respects the opinion of mankind, respects God. All of these things have been trampled under foot by the German ruler. What right, therefore, has he to talk of honorable peace, when he has no conception of honor?

A murderer stands before the bar of justice, convicted of his crimes and ready to be punished! What would we think were he to offer to cease his killing, on the condition that he be allowed to keep the gold taken from dead men's bodies and the food from the mouths of starving children? What would we think were he to offer to stop killing on the condition that he be permitted to escape punishment for violating the pure women of the community and be again respected in society and permitted to sit in judgment on the lives of others? This is the case with the German ruler and he is asking for nothing less.

The Allies are willing to stop the war provided an honorable peace can be had. An honorable peace, however, means that France, Belgium, Italy, Serbia, Roumania and Russia must be evacuated. It means that enough indemnity to help rebuild northern France, Belgium and Serbia must be paid. It means that Italy must have the country about the Adriatic that belongs to her. It means that the Zhecko-Slavs and the Jugo-Slavs must be free. It means that Poland must be free from German machinations. It means that the German army must be demobilized and military training in Germany stopped in the main. It means that never again can the German murderers declare a war against religion, against art, against innocent womanhood and childhood.

We do not believe the German Kaiser means these things when he speaks of an honorable peace. This murderer has lost his right to speak of honor in any way. We do not want one drop of blood to be shed more than is necessary to free the world from the hydra-devil monsters at Berlin, but we do not believe there is a soldier in the American army who wants the war to stop before that time. The German ruler has insulted the civilized world by talking of honor. He boasts that the western front is not broken, but it will be broken and that before long, and it will be broken for all time. Never again must a member of the Hohenzollern family be able to establish a military front.

ANOTHER GERMAN TRICK.
It will be noted that the German and Austrian governments in their latest peace offensive merely say they will DISCUSS peace with the Allies on the principles laid down by President Wilson. Not once do they say they will accept these terms. When they show that they are really in earnest about it they will signify their unconditional acceptance of these terms, the Allies will be ready to end the bloody conflict. Until then we must judge Germany by her past perfidious record and regard this as just another trick to gain time and perhaps gain at the conference table what her armies are unable to accomplish on the battlefield.

As we see it, the Hunz have four objects in view. The first is to get an armistice and thus stop the ferocious drive of Foch's increasing legions until weather conditions stop operations and give the Hunz a breathing spell in which to reorganize and get ready for the spring campaign; second, hold by diplomacy what they can no longer buy by force of arms; third, throw a damper on American loans by leading the people to believe that peace is at hand and the money is not needed; and last to be able to go before their own people with an appeal to keep up the war to the last man since they offered peace and the Allies refused, evidently being determined to exterminate the German race.

The Allies have not forgotten how Russia and Rumania fared at their peace conferences; how the Germans agreed that there would be no annexations and no indemnities and then robbed these nations of everything in sight. They know what the German word is worth and will not be hoodwinked into a bogus peace conference. What the Allies want is a real peace and a lasting peace. They want no mere truce in which Germany prepares for another war of aggression. The Kaiser's idea of an "honorable peace" is one of the terms of which are laid down by himself with Germany holding her ill-gotten gains in the East and going free from payment of damage done to Belgium and the despoiled citizens of France and other invaded countries.

Frank H. Simonds in the Review of Reviews thus sums up the situation:

It is for us now to prevent the German from persuading us to change the field of operations and the weapons of combat at the moment when the field and the weapons of the present are becoming advantageous for us. We are approaching a military decision, it is assured next year by the successes of this year, above all by the demonstration of what America can do, which St. Michael has furnished. The German realizes that the battle will be lost if it continues to be fought by soldiers. He desires to save his army for next time, its prestige as well as its power. He would shift the fight from the field to the green table. If he succeeds we shall pass from a field on which victory is in sight to one in which we shall have every disadvantage and the moral certainty of partial defeat, which means total defeat, for we shall not win this war unless we win it decisively, unmistakably, unless we deprive those who dominate Germany and have led their country to this war of all credit and prestige at home. It is not to punish Germany or to win military glory that the nations united in a common alliance must fight on to military decision. It is to prevent a recurrence of the German attack by destroying the belief in the German mind that by arms Germany can dominate the world. Short of a complete surrender by the Germans, this thing cannot be achieved save by military victory and the German is not thinking of surrendering, but of winning the war by a new set of weapons.

PATRIOTIC SERVICES AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

A memorable service was held Sunday evening at the Presbyterian church. The first part consisted of a splendid musical program presented by part of Normal Glee Club under the direction of Miss Keller; a solo by Miss Currie and choir, and congregational singing also led by her. All songs were of a patriotic nature.

The second part consisted of the reading of appropriate passages of scripture by Rev. G. W. Beck, the pastor, followed by the address of the evening by Luther Harrison, editor of the Star-Democrat and nominee for State Senator. Mr. Harrison has long been recognized as a speaker of unusual ability, and on this occasion he added new laurels to this reputation by a masterpiece woven from historical facts and the necessity of the present campaign for the Liberty Loan. His appeal made a strong impression on the crowded house that heard him.

THE NEW TENANT

By ETHELINE A. MACDONALD.

(Copyright, 1918, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I saw some workmen on the Churchill place today, Jon. I think a new tenant is coming in," remarked "Ma" Holton at the supper table.

Jonathan Holton's lifted teacup descended slowly into his saucer as he looked up inquiringly.

"So?" he answered. "It's been closed some twenty years now, Martha. I shouldn't wonder if young Churchill was back to open it. I'll take a run over there tomorrow and investigate."

In the silence that followed, Azalia Holton sat absorbed in thought. She knew Bryant Churchill only as she recalled his features on richly toned lithographed music sheets. He was a composer.

The homestead of Jonathan Holton adjoined the magnificent estate of the Churchill, from the time of whose decease he had exercised an oversight of the premises, which was a sympathetic contribution more than anything else.

The next day Azalia started out for her usual after-dinner ramble through the fragrant fields and odorous groves, and had not gone far when she stopped at the sight of freshly painted signboards that blazed on every walk and path:

"Private Grounds. Keep Off." "She stood transfixed in her virgin loneliness.

"What a hateful presentation!" was her first utterance when she had suddenly recovered her composure.

It took her but a moment to realize that on her first battlefield she was helpless and defenseless. Like the "flaming sword" of old seemed these emblazoned monitors that urged her back from the tree of life. She felt that her problem was a serious one. After meditating for some minutes she finally decided she would interview the new tenant. Her almost inherent right would be a probable excuse.

As she advanced toward the house her courage returned and she quickly mounted the steps and gave the door a vigorous blow. After several unsuccessful attempts to arouse some one she tried the door, which opened so easily that it gave her a surprise. The pleasant odor that greeted her seemed a part of the distinctive interior. The place was so beautiful that Azalia walked about from room to room.

In delightful contrast to the plain little organ in her home was the rich grand piano littered with music copies. Now, Azalia's musical training had not been neglected and it was only natural that her fingers should seek the keys as she glanced at the music before her. Very soon she was playing with her accustomed grace and skill, but in turning the pages of the folio an inner sheet was dislodged and fell to the floor somewhere. She turned about, only to discover that it was in the hands of a handsome young man in uniform.

"I heard the music and came in to congratulate the musician. I am Bryant Churchill." He was returning the fallen music to the piano.

"Are you—the—the coming man?" she faltered.

"The coming man," he repeated.

"I mean, you are the new tenant," explained Azalia.

"Rather, the 'once upon a time' tenant, facing new conditions. You are—" Azalia Holton demurely.

"And now permit me to explain my statement, which may have seemed to you a trifle obscure. This is my old home and I came here a week ago, but I am leaving again tomorrow to do my bit for Uncle Sam, and then I expect to return for good."

Then together they sat talking and listening intently to one another until the twilight fell about them.

"Azalia," he was reflecting. "I have a little gem by that name."

He strode to the piano. If Azalia had lost her heart in the grandeur and charm of Churchill manor it surely had been found by the artist-owner before her, whose masterly execution was only surpassed by his kind voice and pleasing personality. He was the captain of all that had gone before.

Abruptly he turned and was speaking in lawyer fashion.

"Access to my property for twenty years gives your father almost an inviolable right in it. But there is another who has a greater lien upon it."

He had risen and was looking away from her and did not see the cloud of disappointment that settled upon her face. She moved toward him and touched his arm consolingly. "Cannot something be done?" an anxious look on her face, now uplifted.

Her freshness, unseen by him in others, captivated him. With an indescribable impulse he suddenly drew her into his arms and kissed her. It might be the only one he could ever claim.

"Bryant!" she murmured, gently disengaging herself.

"Forgive me, Azalia," he said. "I couldn't help it. Can't you see you are the one? In my travels I have found no one like you, though I have often wished for a time like this. It is growing dark and I am going away tomorrow. May I see you tonight?"

"But you are coming home with me to supper?" Azalia insisted.

"On one condition. That you promise me that you will think of one day coming with me to my home to stay."

He extended his hand, which she took cheerfully.

A clear title to Churchill had passed to the new tenant.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—if You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

INDIANA BETS ON OKLAHOMANS

William Stewart driver for the American Express Co., got the scare of his life early Friday. "Bill" was at the Monon when a troop train, carrying a thousand or two soldiers from Oklahoma to another training camp or port. "Bill" said he bet any one of them could take a "48" and pick the kaiser's eye out at any distance, and he says them were the loudest and roughest gang that ever went towards Germany. He is sure the ones on the one train could whip the kaiser's best regiment at any time or place. "Bill" said he could hear the men yelling for two or three miles and from Limedale to Greencastle, their yells sounded like heavy artillery in action on the west front, and unless the war is over by the time the Oklahoma crowd gets there, it won't last long after they get into action. They dropped off a bunch of mail here for their wives and family in Oklahoma, and the parting shout to those on the platform was "Is this a dry town?"—Greencastle (Ind.) Banner.

MISS WINTERSMITH DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Miss Mary Hewitt Wintersmith, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Wintersmith, died yesterday morning at the family home, 1465 South Fourth street at 4 o'clock, of acute Bright's disease, following an illness of brief duration.

Miss Wintersmith was a graduate of the Semple Collegiate school, formerly located in this city, and had spent much of her life in traveling, principally in South America and Europe. She was well known in Louisville and had a wide acquaintance throughout the state. Miss Wintersmith had been appointed a colonel in the Women's Liberty Loan Legion in the fourth Liberty loan campaign and had always taken an active interest in all branches of war work.

Miss Wintersmith was a granddaughter of Col. Dick Wintersmith, of Washington, a man of international renown. Besides her parents she is survived by a brother, J. M. Wintersmith of Ada, Okla., and two sisters,

A PARABLE

Brand Whitlock said in an address in Washington:

"My war experiences have done me good. They have broadened my mind. I am a writer rather than a politician, and we writers live too restricted lives."

"You know the story of Carlyle and his soundproof room in Chelsea."

"Carlyle had built a soundproof room for himself on the top of his house. The room had no windows, but only a skylight for illuminating purposes. To an elderly visitor from Craigenputtock the room was shown by Carlyle, and the visitor gave a cackling laugh and said:

"My conscience, this is fine! Here ye may write and study all the rest ye like and nobody'll be a bit the wiser!"

Tough Luck.

His wife had followed him across to be a Red Cross nurse.

During a Mt. of German strafing he fell wounded and woke up several hours later in a field hospital. His wife was bending over him.

"Ain't that just my luck, Jenny?" he murmured. "With all the pretty nurses there are over here to look after the soldiers I had to draw you."

NO SCORCHING.

First Autoist—I was out in my new auto today and got arrested.

Second Autoist—Exceeding the speed limit, eh?

First Autoist—No, the blame thing wouldn't hardly go at all. I was arrested for blocking the traffic.

A Superior Mortal.

His style of dress shows some neglect. He's not an overnice man, But, oh, I treat him with respect. Because he is the iceman.

Married Again.

"I don't like to send out wedding cards," said Flubdub. "You know, I married the day after I got my divorce."

"I understand. Suppose you announce 'Under new management,' and let it go at that."

Find All Around.

"How do you like the neighbors in your new apartment house?"

"Best I ever had. We were anxious not to know anybody and everybody is evidently determined not to know us."

Not Altogether Unusual.

"The amendment to this bill is getting more thought and discussion than the original document."

"Well," inquired Senator Sorghum, "isn't it much the same way with the Constitution of the United States?"

Succeeded.

Sapleigh—I made a perfect fool of myself today.

Miss Keen—How nice! I was sure you'd make something of yourself if you kept on trying.

A MERE SUGGESTION.

Mrs. Goodwin—I wish to select a birthday present for my husband and I can't think of anything. He doesn't smoke or drink nor go out nights nor play cards.

The Salesman—Is he fond of fancy work?

Wuff!

"A rainy day sure gives me pains, I am worn out," remarked the rubber. "And I'm used up each time it rains." We hear the old umbrella blubber.

Very Properly.

"How would you manage the march of righteousness?"

"I'd perform it on an upright piano."

MANY DISTRICTS OVER THE TOP

The Liberty Loan campaign opened this morning with a rush. Business men waited at their places of business for the committees to call and others remained at home so that they would be in easy reach. A report from the committee of Ada had not been completed at the hour of going to press.

At noon reports had come from Lawrence, Beebe, Francis, Union Hill, Oakman and Blue Mound. All went over the top. Owing to the fact that no definite rule had been laid down about whether reports over the phone or a settlement at headquarters should determine the case, Chairman Ellison is at a loss to know which place is entitled to first honors. Oakman and Beebe settled this morning, although some of the others made reports earlier. In fact, some districts had completed their work Saturday. The race for first place is very close but there is honor enough for all.

FRANK MADDOX DIES AT OKLAHOMA CITY

J. Frank Maddox died at Oklahoma City Sunday afternoon, about 4:30 after a hard battle against an attack of influenza and pneumonia. The body was brought to Ada this morning and the funeral will be held at the Torbett residence Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Frank Maddox was in the very prime of his manhood, being only 34 years of age. He was for many years a resident of Ada and engaged in the drug business. He was a man who stood high in the esteem of everyone, for he was a man of sterling worth and integrity with a character and reputation above reproach. He is survived by his wife.

JUDGE BOLEN WILL NOT TRY RODDIE CASE

Editor:

The inquiry is so general as to whether I will preside in the Roddie case, that I want to ask you to say that I feel I am thoroughly disqualifed to try the case. The courts must be places of exact justice and personal and political rancor has no place in them and I would not want a judge to try me or my friends with the frame of mind I have on this matter, therefore I will take no part whatever in the case.

J. W. BOLEN,
District Judge.

LONDON NEWSPAPERS WOULD FIGHT ON

(By the Associated Press)
London, Oct. 7.—Distrust of Germany's intentions and skepticism as to the result of the central powers' peace overtures are reflected in press comment in all newspapers here. The Mail will have nothing to do with Germany's offers: "We didn't allow Bulgaria to tell us what to do; we told her what to do. We intend to act in precisely the same manner with Germany." The Telegraph says Germany is trying to bargain, but this is to be no bargain peace.

FRENCH PRESS OPPOSES PEACE

(By the Associated Press)
Paris, Oct. 7.—Monday being two-page day for newspapers here, little comment appeared on Prince Maximilian's speech printed this morning. The Figaro, which fairly represents moderate opinion, finds the speech inspired by a desire to avoid defeat on battle field. Peace now would still leave Europe under Germany's menace, this newspaper says.

The funeral services of Jesse Clock, one of the soldier boys who died in service, were conducted Sunday by Rev. G. W. Beck. Deceased is survived by his wife.

Luther Harrison has been tendered a position on the editorial staff of the Morning Citizen, Asheville, N. C., one of the leading papers of the state. However, he will remain in Ada.

Miss Caroline Prewette who has been teaching in the public school at Coalton is at home for the present, her school having been closed temporarily on account of an epidemic of Spanish influenza.

Charles Rayburn, who has been attending the state university, returned home Sunday evening quite ill. He was accompanied by Guy Woodward who returned this afternoon.

Col. John G. James was up from Roff this afternoon to attend the funeral of Percy Barton. Judge Barton, father of deceased, was a school boy under Col. James years ago at the military school conducted by the latter at Austin, Texas.

Yandell Lain, who is at home on furlough, has been calling the attention of the aviation department at Dallas of which he is a member, to the advantages of Ada as a landing place for machines in cross country flights. It is possible that this will be arranged.

Speaking of Birds:
Just as the village "cut-up" tilted back in his chair on the veranda of the small-town hotel an old horse moved slowly past.
"Say, sonny," shouted the "cut-up" to the boy astride the animal, "how long has that horse been dead?"
Quick as a flash the boy replied:
"Three days, but you're the first crow that has noticed it."

DADDY'S EVENING Fairy Tale BY MARY GRANMIRE

HAREBELL FLOWERS

"The Musk-ox," said Daddy, "is prepared for the rain by the coarse hair which grows on top of his nice, soft hair. This coarse hair, as you know, catches the rain and then he shakes it all off so that his body doesn't get wet.

"The umbrella bird can put up some of his feathers just as people put up their umbrellas and that protects him from the rain.

"Both the great big musk-ox and the little umbrella bird are very proud that they always have their rain protectors with them, and they have very little use for people who forget their umbrellas and borrow other people's and then forget to return them.

"Of course the musk-ox and the umbrella bird can't very well lend their umbrellas because they don't carry them around by the beak or front paw, but instead have their umbrellas attached to them.

"Whenever it rains they are ready for it—and do not mind it in the least.

"But they aren't the only creatures to be so careful about the rain—that is—there are some flowers who are just as careful."

"I thought flowers loved the rain," said Nancy.

"They need it to make them grow, don't they?" asked Nick.

"Yes," said Daddy, "flowers love the rain. It helps them grow and it keeps them fresh. But the harebell, of which I am going to tell you, sees that none of its family will ever drown.

"Now, the harebell family of flowers are blue in color. The flowers grow on thin, rather tall stems, and when the flowers are in bud they grow very straight and stand right up.

"We're little soldiers, we are," they seem to say as they stand so straight and look so lovely. And they never mind anything.

"They don't mind the cold wind or the bad weather, except they have to be careful about the rain.

"It isn't because of cowardice that they are careful. No, it is because they have good sense.

"When the tiny buds burst into flowers, if they stayed straight up, as they stand when they are buds, every time the rain came it would fill the little flowers and completely drown them, and make them droop forever.

"The little blue petals aren't strong enough to stand the rain, and the flowers are shaped so the rain would come right into them and fill them up—for the harebells are like little bells."

"Yes, they're sensible. They know that the rain would hurt them if they stood up straight, and so they protect themselves. In this way they don't need umbrellas, and it is just as fine as though they owned umbrellas, when their little heads hang down instead of up to receive the rain.

"Mother," whispered one little bud to a much larger bud one day, "when do we open our eyes to see the world?"

"Soon, little harebell, soon," said the mother.

"I'm anxious to see the mountains and the plains, the hills and the valleys," said another little bud.

"And I want to see the sun," said a third.

"I'm growing very restless, mother," said a fourth.

"Soon, soon, little ones, you'll come out and open your eyes to see the beautiful world," said Mother Harebell.

"Will we be in the world quite a time, mother?" another asked.

"Yes, darling," the mother harebell said, "for we harebell flowers are strong. We stand the wind and the storms; but, little ones, listen, of one thing we must be careful."

"Of what must we be careful?" whispered the little buds as they began to slightly open their eyes.

"You can't hold your heads up straight as they are now that they are buds. You must drop your little heads just before you open your eyes, and not look right up at the sky. For if you did look straight up at the sky, when the old King of the Clouds came along he would fill your little bell-like faces with water, and you would drown."

"Oh, Mother, how terrible!" they said.

"That's a warning," said their mother. "If you do as I say, you will be all right, and will live long to smile with your little blue faces at the great and lovely world." And all the little harebells did as she said."

Had Experience.

The children had got tired of climbing trees and picking flowers. So the Sunday school teachers suggested that they should have an impromptu concert. One little mite sang, another danced. Then there was a pause.

"Come, Willie," said one teacher to a member of her class, "you know 'How doth the little busy bee!'"

"I don't!" said Willie, examining a fiery patch on his hand. "I only know he doth it!"

SOME SPECIMENS OF ARMY CAMOUFLAGE

Behind American Lines in France, Oct. 7.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Nothing is real in the great American camouflage station here. All is deception.

Huge willow trees like those in Flanders with trunks two feet in diameter and a mass of sprouting branches at the top are steel tubes designed to hide an observer. Even on close inspection they looked like real trees to The Associated Press Correspondent who visited the station and, with the commandant, explored their mysterious underground recesses.

They were of plaster cloth wound about the central steel tube and with pieces of real bark fitted around the trunk. A small gauze orifice, painted to match the bark, was not noticed until pointed out by the officer. This was for the observer standing within in the steel core of the tree.

Ten feet away the turf opened, disclosing a passage with steps leading to a tunnel and thence to the base of the tree. With a light we groped through the tunnel and up into the tree. It was a tight fit in this tree trunk, but from the gauze orifice one had a sweep of the whole nearby country.

A huge boulder, such as one sees along country roads, was noticed among the trees. The big stone, five feet high and seven across, looked very real, and yet this, too, was camouflage—a make-believe boulder in which an observer and machine gun could lurk.

Examining the stone, it felt rather like a big cardboard box, and gave slightly to the pressure of the hand. The frame was wood, the covering burlap, painted a gray-brown, with patches of moss. And buried amid the moss the canvas flap raised to let through the nozzle of the machine gun could be seen.

"You have your own telegraph system," was remarked on observing the line of telegraph poles stretching across the plain.

The commandant smiled. "Those are periscope telegraph poles," he explained.

The poles were veritable telegraph poles, with wires strung from the tops, just as they are seen along country roads. But each pole was hollow, to permit a periscope to be raised to a high observing point, while a covered pit at the base of the pole accommodated the observer taking the readings of the periscope.

Beside the periscope poles, there were periscope trees, with hollow stumps from which the observer's instrument was manipulated and the readings made in pits below the roots.

A camouflage stone wall was another curious device standing among the camouflage trees and poles. This wall, looking like the ruin of an old mill, was of light plaster construction painted and weather-worn to resemble a real mill.

A wrecked house often serves us as very good camouflage," said the commander. "We had one with the windows so the enemy could look straight through to the walls inside. By painting canvas walls just back of the windows, the enemy still thought he was looking at the real walls opposite. But back of the canvas was our observers and snipers were at work and the device was very effective."

A pile of gravel stood near the wall—or what appeared to be a pile of gravel, for this, too, was camouflage. The pebbles were heaped around a hollow frame with its gauze opening for the observers and the flap through which the machine gun barked. Further along was a pile of brick—camouflage, and over in the field was a stack of hay—camouflage. Each one of them was a small fortress as well as a post of observation.
